Legislative Library Services

BORROWING FROM THE LEGISLATIVE LIBRARY COLLECTION

All legislative and Government of Manitoba employees can borrow circulating materials with a Legislative Library card. Simply contact the library if you want one. Use our catalogue to explore our collections of books, government reports, and Manitobiana. With your library card and the online catalogue, you can request, borrow, or renew, books and reports from your desktop. If we do not own the book or article you want, we can arrange to borrow it for you from another library. For your convenience, requested items can be sent through Interdepartmental Mail.

The library collection includes publications in areas such as political and social sciences, policy and programs, economics, public administration and management, law and legislation, and Manitoba heritage and history. The library has an unequalled collection of Manitoba government publications, and is the legal deposit library for titles published in Manitoba. The library has the largest collection of Manitoba newspapers anywhere. Selected New Titles is regularly published to alert Manitoba government personnel to newly acquired materials.

Many of the Legislative Library's services are available through our website, including our Digital Collection of Manitoba Government Publications, the Manitoba Government Publications Monthly Checklist, Selected Government Links and other E-Resources

For more information, visit the Legislative Library website at www.manitoba.ca/leglib, check out the Library's You Ask, We Answer brochure for government employees, or contact us at Legislative_Library@gov.mb.ca.

Librarian's Picks

Let the eastern bastards freeze in the dark : the West versus the rest since Confederation / Mary Janigan. Toronto : Knopf Canada, 2012. xii, 426 p.

From Random House Inc.:

The oil sands. Global warming. The National Energy Program. Though these seem like modern Canadian subjects, author Mary Janigan reveals them to be a legacy of longstanding regional rivalry. Something of a "Third Solitude" since entering Confederation, the West has long been overshadowed by Canada's other great national debate: but as the conflict over natural resources and their effect on climate change heats up, 150 years of antipathy are coming to a head.

Janigan takes readers back to a pivotal moment in 1918, when Canada's western premiers descended on Ottawa determined to control their own future--and as Margaret MacMillan did in Paris 1919, she deftly illustrates how the results reverberate to this day.

On the edge : mapping North America's coasts / Roger M. McCoy. New York : Oxford University Press, c2012. ix, 251 p.

From Choice Reviews (2013 January):

This delightful and engaging historical geography is much more about exploring coasts than mapping them. Maps, of course, manifest political, military, and economic power; they assign claims to territories and their strategic locational attributes and resources. Accurate maps depended upon getting somewhere first, at least in a fashion that allowed one to record latitude and longitude with some reliability. What McCoy (emer., Utah) does well is to compile a chronology of several centuries of European mariners' exploits reproduced or imagined by cartographers, and to do so in a single coherent narrative and set of maps of consistent scale to illustrate the accumulation of cartographic knowledge of North American coasts up to the early 20th century. [...] The author's writing is crisp, and the book is an accessible, enjoyable read.

How children succeed : grit, curiosity, and the hidden power of character /

Paul Tough. Boston : Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, c2012. xxiv, 231 p.

From Booklist Reviews (2012 September):

Debunking the conventional wisdom of the past few decades that disadvantaged children need to develop basic reading and counting skills before entering school, Tough argues that they would be better served by learning such skills as grit, conscientiousness, curiosity, and optimism. [...] Tough ultimately argues in favor of research indicating that these important skills can be learned and children's lives saved. A very hopeful look at promising new research on education.

Walkable city : how downtown can save America, one step at a time / Jeff Speck. 1st ed. New York : Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 2012. 312 p.

From MacMillan Palgrave:

Jeff Speck has dedicated his career to determining what makes cities thrive. And he has boiled it down to one key factor: walkability.

The very idea of a modern metropolis evokes visions of bustling sidewalks, vital mass transit, and a vibrant, pedestrian-friendly urban core. [...]

Bursting with sharp observations and real-world examples, giving key insight into what urban planners actually do and how places can and do change, Walkable City lays out a practical, necessary, and eminently achievable vision of how to make our normal American cities great again.

Herbert has lots for a buck : how 12 small prairie towns reinvented themselves for the 21st century / Elizabeth McLachlan. Edmonton : NeWest Press, 2012.

227 p.

From Chapters.Indigo.ca:

Despite changes in population and the loss of such essential services as schools, post offices, and grain elevators, many of Canada's oldest prairie communities—communities like Craik and Meacham in Saskatchewan, and Vulcan in Alberta—have defied the odds, facing death only to rise again. In Herbert Has Lots for a Buck, Elizabeth McLachlan investigates how these communities have capitalized on green initiatives, the growing influence of local artists, and even an uncanny connection to one of Star Trek's most famous icons to not only survive beyond expectations, but thrive.
