First World War Materials on Display in the Reading Room

The Manitoba Legislative Library will share its collection of First World War Manitoba newspapers, government publications, books, and periodicals with visitors to the Library's Reading Room throughout the month of December. The Reading Room is open to the public Monday to Friday, from 8:30am to 4:30pm.

To complement the Library's rich collection of materials, First World War flags and recruitment posters will be on display throughout the Reading Room. The flags and posters are on generous loan from Settlers, Rails & Trails Museum in Argyle, Manitoba.

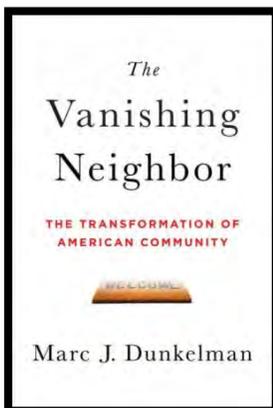

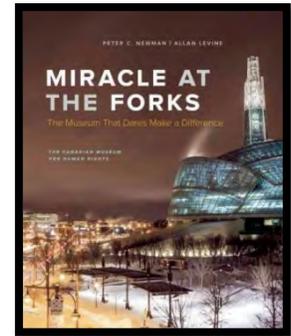

Librarian's Picks

Miracle at the Forks : the museum that dares make a difference : the Canadian Museum for Human Rights / Peter C. Newman, Allan Levine. Vancouver : Figure 1 Publishing, 2014. xv, 183 pages.
AM 101 .W45 New

From the publisher:

On July 18, 2000, Israel "Izzy" Asper, the renowned Canadian businessman and philanthropist, first discussed his idea of building a human rights center in Winnipeg. He wanted to educate visitors about human rights issues and make the world a more humane place. Filled with full-color photography and exquisitely designed, Miracle at the Forks recounts the 14-year ordeal of making Izzy Asper's dream a reality. It recounts the financial and political challenges of building a world class museum in Winnipeg, an objective that was made all the more difficult by Asper's death six months after the public unveiling of museum's plans. It is a story of passion and sheer will, about Moe Levy's determination to see Asper's grand idea come true, of Gail Asper's fortitude and unflagging drive to make sure her father's most cherished project became real, and of the countless others who lobbied, donated money, volunteered time, and fought to make the museum happen.

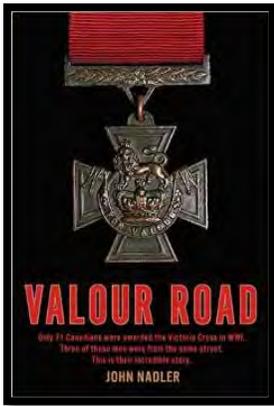

The vanishing neighbor : the transformation of American community / Marc J. Dunkelman. First edition. New York : W.W. Norton & Company, 2014. xx, 291 pages.
HN 59.2 Dun

From the publisher:

Americans today find themselves mired in an era of uncertainty and frustration. The nation's safety net is pulling apart under its own weight; political compromise is viewed as a form of defeat; and our faith in the enduring concept of American exceptionalism appears increasingly outdated. But the American Age may not be ending. In The Vanishing Neighbor, Marc J. Dunkelman identifies an epochal shift in the structure of American life—a shift unnoticed by many. Routines that once put doctors and lawyers in touch with grocers and plumbers—interactions that encouraged debate and cultivated compromise—have changed dramatically since the postwar era. Both technology and the new routines of everyday life connect tight-knit circles and expand the breadth of our social landscapes, but they've sapped the commonplace, incidental interactions that for centuries have built local communities and fostered healthy debate. The disappearance of these once-central relationships—between people who are familiar but not close, or friendly but not intimate—lies at the root of America's economic woes and political gridlock. The institutions that were erected to support what Tocqueville called the "township"—that unique locus of the power of citizens—are failing because they haven't yet been molded to the realities of the new American community. It's time we moved beyond the debate over whether the changes being made to American life are good or bad and focus instead on understanding the tradeoffs. Our cities are less racially segregated than in decades past, but we've become less cognizant of what's happening in the lives of people from different economic backgrounds, education levels, or age groups. Familiar divisions have been replaced by cross-cutting networks—with profound effects for the way we resolve conflicts, spur innovation, and care for those in need. The good news is that the very transformation at the heart of our current anxiety holds the promise of more hope and prosperity than would have been possible under the old order. The Vanishing Neighbor argues persuasively that to win the future we need to adapt yesterday's institutions to the realities of the twenty-first-century American community.

Valour Road / John Nadler. Toronto : Viking, 2014. 360 pages, 8 unnumbered pages of plates.

FC 3396.25 Nad

From the publisher:

WWI lasted for four years and three months. And when it ended on November 11, 1918, the people of Pine Street, a sleepy avenue on the outskirts of Winnipeg, came to a startling realization. During the course of the conflict, young Leo Clarke, Robert Shankland, and Fred Hall, all from their street, had each received the Victoria Cross, the highest award for bravery at that time. Such a phenomenon has never been repeated anywhere in the former British empire. Accessing original documents, author John Nadler constructs a story of the three heroic soldiers, their families, and the enormous impact of WWI on a young Canada.

Paths to the bench : the judicial appointment process in Manitoba, 1870-1950 /

Dale Brawn. Vancouver : UBC Press, 2014. xi, 296 pages.

KE 8293 .A6 Bra

From the publisher:

Using the judiciary of Manitoba as a model, Paths to the Bench examines the political nature of Canada's judicial appointment process, and suggests that ability alone seldom determined who went to the bench. In fact, many of Manitoba's early judges spent little time actually practising law, since professional merit was not a criterion for judicial appointments. Rather, it was relationships with influential mentors and communities that ensured appointments and ultimately propelled careers. Brawn offers an in-depth analysis of how the path to the bench of competent and connected and less competent and connected lawyers differed. This book is one of the few studies to examine why many of the best and brightest members of the bar either did not want to go to the bench, or if they did, why they may not have gotten there.

The morning after : the 1995 Quebec referendum and the day that almost was / Chantal Hébert ; with Jean Lapierre. Toronto : Alfred A. Knopf Canada, a division of Random House of Canada Limited, 2014. xx, 299 pages.

FC 2926.9 .R4 Heb

From the publisher:

A sly, insightful and wonderfully original book from one of Canada's most popular political analysts, Chantal Hébert, and one of Quebec's top political broadcasters, Jean Lapierre.

Only the most fearless of political journalists would dare to open the old wounds of the 1995 Quebec referendum, a still-murky episode in Canadian history that continues to defy our understanding. The referendum brought one of the world's most successful democracies to the brink of the unknown, and yet Quebecers' attitudes toward sovereignty continue to baffle the country's political class. Interviewing 17 key political leaders from the duelling referendum camps, Hébert and Lapierre begin with a simple premise: asking what were these political leaders' plans if the vote had gone the other way. Even 2 decades later, their answers may shock you. And in asking an unexpected question, these veteran political observers cleverly expose the fractures, tensions and fears that continue to shape Canada today.
