From treaty peoples to treaty nation : a road map for all Canadians / Greg Poelzer and Ken S. Coates. Vancouver ; Toronto : UBC Press, 2015. xxviii, 337 pages.
E 92 Poe

From Choice Reviews:

Canadians generally see the status and situation of First Nations in two ways: the well-being of Aboriginal peoples is a government responsibility because the government created the 1876 Indian Act, or it is the responsibility of First Nations alone to ensure their own well-being. Poelzer and Coates argue that both perspectives are wrong. It is the responsibility of all Canadians to deal with the challenges Aboriginal Canadians face—it is time for all Canadians to live as "treaty peoples." Despite largely negative attitudes that the majority of non-Aboriginal Canadians hold toward First Nations issues, the authors choose to focus on the positive aspects of the Aboriginal-colonial relationship. They optimistically argue that Canadians must simply and directly embrace all Canadians as treaty people if the country is to positively move forward. The authors identify three keys that all Canadians must accept as treaty peoples: Aboriginal peoples must be accorded status and honor by both state and society, Aboriginal political communities must be empowered within Canadian political systems, and Aboriginal peoples must be put on equal footing with other Canadians through expanded economic opportunity. Complementary texts include Michael Asch's On Being Here to Stay and John Ralston Saul's The Comeback.

Management accounting at the Hudson's Bay Company : from quill pen to digitization / by Gary Spraakman. First edition 2015. Bingley, UK : Emerald, 2015. xv, 285 pages.
HF 5657.4 Spr

From the publisher:

Management Accounting at the Hudson's Bay Company: From Quill Pen to Digitization describes the 1670 to 2005 evolution of management accounting at the longest surviving commercial company in the world. This book was possible for the extraordinary reason that by plan, and the nature of HBC's early business, the company retained virtually all management accounting documents. Through the viewpoint of management accounting, the book also tells the story of Anglo-American evolution of double-entry bookkeeping for managing companies.

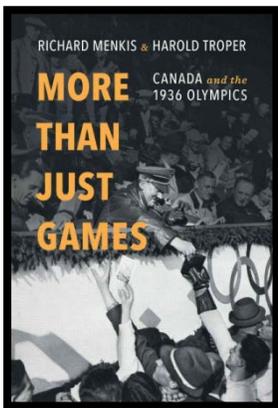

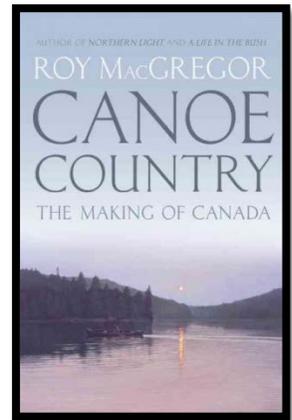

A study of 335 years may seem daunting until recognizing that management accounting does not change often, and changes are exciting, dramatic and consequential. Five significant sets of management accounting changes were identified, each made for significant strategic or more precisely for survival reasons. Thus, the focus of this book is on the making and remaking of management accounting to support survival strategy.

A serious lesson is that management accounting can be difficult to change and without insightful managers, existing management accounting is allowed to survive well beyond its usefulness.

Canoe country : the making of Canada / Roy MacGregor. Toronto : Random House Canada, 2015. 299 pages.
GV 776.15 .A2 Mac

From the publisher:

From the earliest explorers on the Columbia River in BC or the Mattawa in Ontario to a doomed expedition of voyageurs up the Nile to rescue Khartoum; from the author's family roots deep in the Algonquin wilderness to modern families who have canoed across the country (kids and dogs included): Canoe Country is Roy MacGregor's celebration of the essential and enduring love affair Canadians have with our first and still favourite means of getting around. Famous paddlers have been so enchanted with the canoe that one swore God made Canada as the perfect country in which to paddle it. Drawing on MacGregor's own decades spent whenever possible with a paddle in his hand, this is a story of high adventure on white water and the sweetest peace in nature's quietest corners, from the author best able (and most eager) to tell it.

More than just games : Canada and the 1936 Olympics / Richard Menkis and Harold Troper. Toronto ; Buffalo : University of Toronto Press, 2015. xx, 281 pages.
GV 722 1936 Men

From Choice Reviews:

Menkis and Troper have produced a definitive history of Canada's role in the 1936 Olympic Games held in Nazi Germany. Their well-researched account covers all aspects of the games with special focus upon those, like Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath, who, after visiting Germany, spoke out passionately against Canadian participation in the Olympics. The book also chronicles the sports figures from Canada who did (and in some cases did not) participate in the games, and the controversies in Berlin, particularly concerning hockey, that were of special interest to Canadians. The book lacks a central thesis, and general readers will prefer David Clay Large's Nazi Games, the best and most readable overall history of the Nazi Olympics. For the Canadian chapter of the story, however, one cannot do better than this book.

History's people : personalities and the past / Margaret MacMillan. Toronto : House of Anansi Press, 2015. 389 pages.
CT 2 Mac

From Publishers Weekly Reviews:

In this erudite analysis of major historical figures, MacMillan spotlights individuals who have either made history or documented it. [...] The first three chapters present those who have "left their mark on history," while the last two showcase history's recorders, who shared a "refreshing freedom from the prejudices and judgments of their own times." MacMillan's more surprising choices are her most interesting. While Hitler and Stalin are obvious examples of political hubris, Woodrow Wilson is an idiosyncratic—and more fascinating—choice. Nixon, hardly the most charismatic of American presidents, is convincingly portrayed as a leader of considerable daring in his outreach to Mao's China. MacMillan's fascination with history's more curious observers builds the book's strongest chapters. Through describing the lives of people such as Victor Klemperer, a German Jewish academic who survived and documented life in Nazi Germany, or Count Harry Kessler, one of the great record keepers of European life in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, MacMillan deftly and engagingly shows that history is a process of capturing the minutiae of life as much as time's epic strokes.
